

PaperClip Communications Digital Brochure Distribution Agreement

Copyright

The Title IX and Sexual Harassment Brochure is protected under the copyright of PaperClip Communications.

The materials in this Brochure are the intellectual property of PaperClip Communications, except where indicated otherwise by footnote or citation. Materials which have been sourced, cited or used with the permission of another author or entity remain the copyright of that individual or entity. Reproduction, alteration or retransmission of such material is a violation of federal copyright law.

As a collective resource, in its unique composition, structure and authorship, PaperClip Communications retains copyright over the resource.

License to Post / Distribute

As part of your purchase, this license allows you to post and/or distribute electronically or in print format the Digital Brochure with the following restrictions.

This resource is intended to be shared with students enrolled at your institution and their families. You may not distribute this brochure to any person who is not affiliated with your institution. You may not post this content on any website that is not that of your institution.

Altering, editing or otherwise changing the materials is a violation of federal copyright law.

If you have questions, please email us at info@paper-clip.com.